PUPILS' JUSTICE!

By RIFUMO MALULEKE

TWO thugs pounced on a sad old man who'd just lost his wife ... and took 20 bucks, a bank card and his out-dated cellphone ...

But they did not have long to enjoy their loot.

THEY HAD THEIR CRIMINAL HABITS KICKED AND PUNCHED OUT OF THEM ... BY SCHOOLKIDS!

The teenagers, many of them in school uniform, came on the scene soon after 62-year-old Alpheus Nyawose was robbed at gunpoint.

The pupils, more used to being GIVEN lessons ... now became the teachers - and gave the thugs a lesson they won't forget.

Alpheus told Daily Sun his wife died on Tuesday ... and he was on his way to tell his family when the cruel thugs struck.

"I begged them not to kill me or take my cellphone and money ... as I needed to pay for transport.

"But they took it anyway ..."

The old guy called for help from a passing soldier and they stopped a cop car.

And that's when the kids from a nearby school

THE BIG P1 STORY

came passing by.

They grabbed the thugs ... and gave them a painful lesson.

The dramatic picture on Page One today shows the high school crime-busters in action.

As you can see, the kids used their fists, their feet ... and even water-filled plastic tubes.

It happened in open void between

The cellphone that started it all ...

Slovoville and Dobsonville in Soweto yesterday morning.

People who live in the area told Daily Sun there had been other violent attacks in the same place recently.

The battered robbers had to be rescued by the cops and were taken away in a van.
